“ He was the best man I knew. Always there for ANYONE in need. He could prepare a meal that would put top notch restaurants to shame. His laugh was infectious and his smile could light up a room. Had a great love for & knowledge of baseball. Was an outstanding pitcher in High School & college. Was a great partner to me when we worked at the jail together. Had a love for blues guitar and I fondly remember going to see BB King with him, along with countless Yankees games. I still think about all the boxing PPV's we watched together while devouring insane amounts of Taco Bell! The trips to Mexico and all of our crazy adventures. We had drifted apart in the couple of years before his death. But I always thought that we would end up sitting around , two old men, reminiscing about days gone by, smoking cigars, drinking good whiskey and laughing... always laughing.
That wasn't meant to be. But I'm so glad I got to see you again and tell you that I love you. I wish I had told you that more often. Cause I love you very much, brother. And I miss you.
I'll see you when I get there...
