

Georgia Mae Brown

April 17, 1932 - August 12, 2019

On April 17, 1932, God displayed the beauty of his love by lending the world one of his exquisite gifts, in the birth of Georgia Mae Sapp. She was born in Pelham, Georgia, to the parents of the late Walter Lee Sapp and Cassie Mae Sapp. Georgia began her educational journey in the state of Georgia.

At an early age, Georgia Mae met and married Charlie Wright and that union brought nine children.

“Whosoever findeth a wife findeth a good thing” came to pass when Bennie E. Brown and Georgia Mae Wright met; they decided to be joined in Holy Matrimony and with that unity they shared many years together.

Georgia Mae Brown served her church with love and dedication as a faithful and active member, until her health wouldn’t allow her to. Her desire was always to attend church and when she was unable she still made sure to send her tithe in which she would always say “Paying my tithe is where my blessings come from.”

She’s not going back she’s moved forward to a new home. She was here to declare to us, her past is over. All things were made new, on Monday morning August 12, 2019. Georgia Mae Brown has changed her address permanently. Left to cherish her legacy and forever grateful for the memories her children: Charlie Mae Givens (Lorinzo Sr.), George Wright, Gloria Wright, Jeanette Wright, Arbedella Tigner (Kenny), Mia Watson (Rick), three children preceded her in death: Astrid Michelle Wright, Argie Lee Wright, and Virgil Wright.

Georgia loved her kids so much that she raised four of her grandchildren as her own, Shawntel Steele (Lindsey), Kristal Coleman, Amy Pittman and Tyrone Wright. One sister: Willie Mae Blantche; Five siblings preceded her in death. Like a sister: Rosetta Hankins. A loving abundance of grandchildren, great-grandchildren, and five great-great grand- children, a host of nieces, nephews, relative and sorrowing friends.
