“ Jacob was always there for me when I needed him! So many late night talks & texts, so many open emotions. He saw so much in me that I failed to see in myself and pushed me to be a better person and I'm still shattered. I can't move on and I wish I had another call! I can't even put into words how many things I will miss but most of all his beautifully unique spirit. I wish I could have given u so much more and u had held on longer. I would have given anything for my son to have known you. I am trying so hard to be who you felt I truly was, all of the good. To mention your name and remember you often & make your legacy live on! I will forever miss you!

“ My heart broke when I heard this news. This is a huge loss for me personally, and to anyone who ever had the good fortune to know Jacob. I'm not sure I've ever met anyone with a bigger heart. While most of us took the path of least resistance in life, Jacob dedicated himself to caring for his parents, especially his mother, who suffered a nearly fatal brain aneurysm just after he finished law school. His love for her and his father was selfless and beautiful. But that's who Jacob was - a kind, loving, vibrant human being who would've given the shirt off his back to anyone who needed it. On top of all that, he was a brilliant lawyer with a sharp mind and sharp wit. I'm so sad that I won't be able to see my friend Jacob again in this life, but I know the veil between here and Heaven is thin...and he's watching over us now. God bless you, Jacob!

I agree with everything Lynn so eloquently expressed above! JJ was one of the kindest, funniest friends I ever had! We studied at law school together with Lynn. We all developed a great respect and love for each other. JJ will be missed. He was a graduate of St. Thomas University School of Law in Miami. He lived in Coral Springs, Florida. JJ is survived by his sister, Dr. Michelle D. Bannoura. He will be remembered and missed deeply. Celene and I loved you Jim. RIP.
